

90 DAY PLAN

things to do,
places to go
and services we need

the team's 90 day plan

Our plan is to present a fiscally sound draft of the 2023 budget and encourage feedback from the community. We also plan to identify key service delivery issues and update opportunities to match ratepayer's expectations. Building a consensus on such policies as roads, transfer station opportunities and more will help put us on the path forward.

a vibrant, healthy community for all ages

The 2021 census reports a 27% increase in full-time residents since 2016. This is a major shift. Seniors continue to be our largest growth "industry". The over 55 age group now represents 64% of our neighbours. Creating jobs to attract & retain young families in McKellar is key to future sustainability.

rural sustainability strategy

Agri-tourism, like the "farm to fork" phenomenon provides more options for local job creation and to shop local while respecting the heritage and environment of a rural community. The success of our McKellar Market is one such example.

aging in place

As we "age in place" we must find ways to provide better support for in-home services, including having safe accessible roads year round.

courage to collaborate

We will work with our MPP and Ministries to assist in our infrastructure and community projects. This could include grants and low interest rates, as well as examine opportunities for shared services for mutual benefit.

progressive financial management

Forward-thinking financial options, like debentures, are necessary in today's uncertain market. We can leverage a low-interest loan for fixed assets that is essential for prudent "pay forward" financial management and to stabilize annual budget increases. "Cash only" policies and the "hoarding" of capital reserves actually cost the taxpayer more in the long term.

restore respect in municipal government

Council meetings need to be more transparent and inclusive. Staff reports need to provide the necessary background to inform council decisions. We believe in developing and practicing proactive and positive communication with the public and integrating their feedback when planning.

McKellar Together

we understand the importance of team work

At all levels, the best governments are comprised of open minded individuals from varied backgrounds that are able to work together to achieve the best possible outcome for the community - financially, environmentally, and commercially - for now and into the future.

While there will always be differing opinions, the ability to articulate and listen with respect is the only way that things are going to get done.
